RE: 2020 Adjustments to Policies

Welcome to the 2020 season!

We know this is an unusual time, and like everyone else, we're adjusting our policies in an attempt to find a solid balance between your enjoyment of your time here and our concern for both individual and public health and safety.

We're asking you to understand these temporary policies, and agree to abide by them. Are they ideal? No, but if everyone does their part, they will help ensure your vacation time is truly relaxing in our small community environment.

We do not have staff available to keep an eye on everyone's behavior. We ask you to help pick up that slack this year. We do NOT expect anyone to take on a policing role – just gentle reminders to your unit and our community members to help keep the space enjoyable for all.
The attached policies are our guide. Please also expect to sign a waiver, as we're all responsible for whether we feel safe enough to come to ABCR this year.

We understand that the limit on guests and day travelers is likely to be the most difficult policy to understand. Here's some additional information:
• A "day traveler" is ANYONE (owner, guest) who comes to the property for a NON-OVERNIGHT status. If you are an owner, but you are not staying in your unit that week, you are considered a day traveler.
• "Overnighters" are owners, renters, or their guests that are STAYING ON PROPERTY overnight, in the unit. There is a maximum occupancy of 6 people per unit. This maximum will be enforced. Please don't make anyone have to tell you that there are too many people staying in your unit – that isn't fun for anyone.
• Overnighters have PRIORITY for the private beach, grills, and picnic tables.
• IF IT IS NOT BUSY in these amenity areas, and overnighters have the space they need, then day travelers can stay on the PRIVATE beach with those they are visiting.
• IF IT IS BUSY, and an overnighter does not have the space/access they need, then any day travelers should move to the NON-PRIVATE portion of the beach. Yes, we recognize there may not be space directly with the group day travelers are visiting, but it is important that overnight occupants have priority. This applies to all weeks this season, so although it may inconvenience you, it will also benefit you.

Yes, we know many owners enjoy the perk of those day trips, and we're not telling you not to come visit. Just understand that the folks who paid their money for that week should and will get priority to limited resources. It's a big beach outside of our little patch of heaven, and we all can enjoy it!
